New Show Today at the Auditorium.

The programme for the first three days of the week at this popular house caught the public favor and the management are following it right up with another first class bill.

Much favorable comment was heard the programme, and it is a noticeable fact that this part of the show is going sheed in leaps and bounds. At the resubilic of Mexico is very much in the limelight of publicity at the present time, the management have secured the scenes taken at the Mexican Centennial, which occurred a short time ago. This picture should prove of especial interest at the present time ago. This picture should prove of especial interest at the present time ago. This picture should prove of especial interest at the present time and the educational value of such a film is greater than all the textbooks in the worl. Other subjects are The Secret of the Palm, and Imp frama taken in Cuba; The Dream, also an Imp; and What Would You Do? ascreaming farce comedy by the Powars company.

The vaudeville acts for Thursday are beaded by Marcus and Gartelle, in their equilibristic absurdity entired Skatorial Rollerism. This team is recognized as a star act on all of the best circuits in the country, Billy Reno, The Man from the East, will present his character monologue interspersed with eccentric dancing and contortion work.

Fonight will be the last time this season that Jewett City people will have a late car back to their homes and an along that line as far as Central Vidage. The work of Mr. Bostwick and Miss Locks in the leading roles for the Meriton octopany has wenthe admiration of the sile projection, while it is admitted by all that their support is uniformly good. The seat sale for the balance of the week is exceptional, the regular patrons taking advantage of their last opportunity before the closing of the heater will be dark all summer, responsing about the last week in August with a strong stock company, for which preparations are already being made.

BREED THEATER.

Red's Conquest, the thrilling story at the Breed today, tells of Red Curtis, a young and wealthy cattle owner of southern Nevada, who is attracted to a performance given by a traveling company presenting Eart Lynne. In the midst of the performance an oil lamp explodes, and the frightened throng heaves the place in a hurry, and the opportunity for Red's Conquest is ripe, and he rushes upon the stage. carrying the leading lady to vafety, and returning, secures the little child, who is sleeping in the burning dressing room, thus saving both lives. Red finally wins the lady away from the stage and its allurements, but how he does it must be seen to be appreciated.

Melted Natural los.

During the next few months the quality of the public water supply in many towns and cities will be questioned as the sources are lowered by droughts or flooded by an excess rainfall. While it is true that public supplies are seldom injuriously affected by the foreign vegetable matter when the lakes or reservoirs are low, or by the turbidity following torrential rains, nevertheless the public is loath to drink water so changed from its normal clear state. Frequently health authorises in these emergencies recommend boiling the water.

It is news to many that in the water obtained by melting natural ice there exists a perfectly satisfactory source of drinking water always available in every community. Such ice is from 20 to 39.5 per cent. purer than the water on which it forms. As been the fluest of Mrs. J. Bengamin Brown, has returned.

Pills But 'Cascarets'

No odds how sick your Stemach; how hard your head aches or how Bilious —Cascarets make you feel great.

One old way was castor oil. The effect was to grease the bowels, and for a single day. Oil never causes the bowel muscles to act. Other ways were pills, salts and eatharties. The effect was the same as pepper in the nostrils. They flooded the bowels with fluid. Those fluids were digestive vices. And the waste today means a lack tomorrow.

We knew that the method was wrong. That the after-effects only weakened the bowels. But we had no gentle laxative in the old days. So we waited as long as we could, then took waited as long as we could, then took a big dose of physic. The method to-day is to take one Cascaret at a time—just as soon as you need it. Then the bowels are always clean. They cost only 10 cents per hox at any durg store.

PUETRY

THE LOVER Were all the women of the world to And droop their languorous hair about my heart.
They could not win the kisses that are thine.
And pleading with lips lyrical or dumb.
And howsever an alluring art.
They could not win the kisses that are thine.

If Helen came, her white limbs hung with gold.

And Deldre, with dim visionary eyes, And Grania, fiame-haired, flery with command;

If Here came—reluctant once of old—And she who all too long with Romeo lies.

And she who led Dante heavy ward by the hand.

They could not make me fain or the fair lips.

Nor lure me to the languor of warm breasts.

With any soft compulsion of white And delicate dim touch of finger tips
And fire that flames from eyes and fire that rests
Would leave me cold and lose the mame of charms.

Nay, Solomon's Love and Anthony's Desire,
Heloise and frail Francesca, and their Queen.
Immortal Aphrodite whom I praise.
And all her passionate daughters, veined with fire,
Might pass like old bent hags, for I have seen.
Beauty within thy beauty for all days.'

-The Forum. BALLAD OF THE PADED FIELD. Broad bars of sunset-slanted gold
Are laid along the field, and here
The silence sings, as if some old Refrain that once rang long and clear,
Came softis, stealing to the ear
Without the aid of sound. The rill
Is voiceless, and the grass is sere,
But besuty's soul abideth still.

Trance-like, the mellow air doth hold.

The sorrow of the passing year.

The heart of nature growth cold.

The time of falling snow is near.

On phantom feet, which none may hear.

Creeps—with the shadow of the hill—
The semblance of departed cheer.

But beauty's soul abideth stiff.

The dead gray-clustered weeds enfold.
The well-known summer path, and drear.
The dusking hills, like billows rolled Against the distant sky, appear From lonely haunts, where Night and Keep ghostly tryst, when mists are The dark pine lifts a jagged spear. But beauty's soul abideth still.

Dear love, the days that once were drear
May come no more; life may fulfill Her fleeting dreams with many a leas But beauty's soul abideth still.
